Do you limit the number of bonfires per night?

Generally on average there could be 4 bonfires going on at any location on any night. The beach areas are wide enough that you should not be on top of each other. So if you want to cook on the beach it requires a bonfire permit. Your unit MUST have a containment bottom. There is NO burning directly in the sand. We don't want anyone to accidentally walk on hot coals in the sand.

If the trash won't fit inside the trash can, you must take it with you and dispose of it at home. Leaving trash outside of a trash can receptacle will cause debris and trash to scatter across the beach and parking lot and could end up with the revoking of your bonfire privileges in the future.
